Biography

Introduction

Born in St Petersburg ,Russia.In 1989 moved to the West.Now British citizen ,living in London.

There is a great tradition over the centuries of highly talented portraitists from overseas bringing their own distinctive vision to the depiction of the upper echelons of British society. Sometimes it takes a foreigner's eye to capture and glamorise an essentially British 'look'. One thinks of Van Dyck and Lely from Flanders, or more recently of Sargent from America and de Laszlo from Hungary. Sergei Pavlenko belongs to that tradition. (...) Philip Hook Senior Director Impressionist and Modern Paintings Sotheby's, London In 1697 the famous British artist Godfrey Kneller painted a portrait of a young Tsar Peter the Great. Some three centuries later the Russian Artist Sergey Pavlenko was honoured to paint her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II. The connection between two distant events demonstrates that the Russian school of painting, had since the time of Peter the Great developed into one of the finest European schools. It also acknowledges the talent of the contemporary Russian artist Sergei Pavlenko. (...) Artist Statement I try to create a painting that would appeal even to people who do not know the sitter.
With every brush stroke on all parts of the painting working to show the character, soul, taste, lifestyle etc of the sitter. Going beyond formal likeness, making a real PORTRAIT rather than a sketch.
First meeting---discussing and understanding each others ideas, wishes, timing etc.
First sitting ---working on composition-----1.5 hours
Then 2 to 4 (max) sittings 2 hours each.
IMPORTANT-- the price IS NOT connected with the size of commissioned portrait.
